Engaging content

Create original content

Identify a unique perspective or point of view with creative formats for content.

Ensure content is valuable

All content that you produce should provide value whether it's to educate, entertain, inspire, connect, communicate or promote - what value is the viewer getting?

Content should be compelling

Your content should inspire action use call to actions, evocative language, psychological tactics such as fomo and creating urgency.

The message in the content should be clear

Your message should be clear and to the point so that someone can understand what the post is about over the period of a scroll.

Content should be consistent

Users will begin to build a relationship with your brand, you need to ensure that your style, voice, terminology and messaging remains constant and recognisable.

Content should be well-written

Although you may only be posting 280 characters, don't underestimate the power of good writing, no matter how short it is, make sure it's punchy.

Content should be findable

Your content has to be findable, so optimise every piece of content as best you can.

What users want

- Personalised content
- Connection with brands
- Authenticity in content
- Transparency from brands

Social media design tips

Different images

- Style of images you are using
- Images sizes and resolution for each channel

Include your logo

- The presence of a recognisable logo makes it easier for users to recognise your brand

Balance

- Keep your design balanced and ensure that imagery is easily recognisable – consider what it would look like on mobile.

Consistency

- Ensure that all your brand colour combinations and fonts are adhered to.

Limit text

- Try not to use too much copy on your designs. Keep it as short as possible and to the point.

Use negative space

- Particularly if you are highlighting a product - ensure that your product stands out – again not making the image too busy or chaotic
