Elements of successful Social Media Management

Plan

In order to get to where we are going, we need to know how to get there. Planning is the key to success in social media marketing and management.

Use themes

This helps save you time and effort with regards to content creation and allows you to leverage off of already popular content.

Choose focus platforms

Focus on the platforms that are helping you to achieve your goals and prioritise the content and management of these platforms.

Identify secondary platforms

You will also have platforms that may not be directly contributing to achieving your goals, but that does assist you in other ways such as with customer support.

Post times and frequency

Determining your post times and frequency helps you to be consistent in your posting and targets your users when they are online.

Get buy-in

In order to produce quality content that best serves your customers, you will need the support of the entire company to gain a better understanding of your customer needs and information requirements.

Take photos

Start taking photos of everything! It is always better to have content but not use it than to need content and not have any

Follower influencers

Follow influencers within your industry so that you can keep up to date with the latest trends and news in your industry as well as leverage it for your own social media.

Trends

Use trending topics or hashtags to leverage more reach and engagement on your social media.

Brainstorm

Get a team of individuals from different departments in your organisation together to brainstorm content ideas.

Social Media Management mistakes to avoid

Sporadic posting

Your fans will get used to seeing posts from you and expect them once they have built a relationship with your brand.

No engagement

Fans want to feel as though they are being heard by a brand. Remember that engagement doesn't necessarily mean that you have to start full-on conversations with your audience - but if they share your post to their page - simply like it - that counts as engagement. Be sure to always respond to negative comments - most users won't be put off your brand by negative comments but they will be put off your brand if they see that there is no response to a negative comment.

Inconsistent presence

Ensure that your brand is represented consistently across multiple channels - this means that whether I am on Facebook - Instagram - Twitter - I can easily associate each channel with your brand.

No management app

If you are only using one or two channels then you may not require a management app - but when you get to three or more platforms using a management app is essential! It will save you so much time and effort when it comes to monitoring and reporting.

Social Media engagement

Social media engagement is the act of responding to followers on social media.

The rules of social media engagement

1. Monitor your social media platforms

2. Prepare as much as you can for online engagement and interactions - both positive and negative

3. Provide the user with substance in your answer

4. Let your brand personality shine through when responding

5. Defuse any online tension between a fan and yourself or between fans

6. Be consistent in your answers and stay aligned with your brand personality

7. Integrate your social media with a management platform

8. By following all of these tips you will create advocates that will stand up for your brand online
